LUSITANIA DODGES GERMAN WARSHIPS IN HOMEWARD RACE

Report Received at New York That British Liner Secures Protection of Cruiser.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BULLETIN.

New York, Aug. 6.—Captain Hessel of the Uranian line steamer Uranian, announced to the British consulate today that he had intercepted wireless messages from the steamship Lusitania, saying that two German cruisers which had been pursuing the Lusitania had been chased and sunk by two British warships. The Uranian reached port yesterday. This report has not yet been confirmed.

New York, Aug. 6.—Further word of the big English liner Lusitania dodging German cruisers in a race for England, was brought to New York today by the oil tank steamer Tona-wanda, from London and Antwerp.

Captain Hart said yesterday he heard the Lusitania in wireless communication with the British cruiser Essex, saying that a foreign cruiser was following her and asking the Essex to stand by. Later the Essex went in search of the foreigner. The Uranian reached port yesterday. This report has not yet been confirmed.

During three days past, said Captain Hart, the wireless brought news of the presence of British, French and German cruisers. None was sighted, however. The French liner La Loire, bearing nearly a thousand refugees bound for France, was seen seventy miles east of Fire Island. The British steamer Kansas City, which sailed yesterday for Bristol, turned about today and made for Perth Amboy, New Jersey.

Though the British consul refused to discuss it, a report gained wide circulation today that the Lusitania was being followed by a German cruiser. The British steamer Uranian, arriving here today, had reported at the consulate that wireless messages intercepted by his ship from the Cunarder Lusitania had stated that two German cruisers basing the Lusitania, had been pursued and sunk by British warships.

Captain Agassiz said he had made no such statement, and in this he was borne out by officials of the Uranian line. It is known, however, that the Lusitania has been dodging German war vessels while racing for England. The report that there had been an engagement between British and German craft was received with some credence.

The presence close to the American coast of German warships has caused many nations prepared to descend upon and capture merchant vessels of their opposing belligerents, was shown today in news of great Atlantic liners arriving at Halifax, Nova Scotia, and by reports of wireless messages that the Lusitania has been dodging German war vessels while racing for England.

Officials of the Cunard Line here announced today that the Lusitania had put into Halifax under orders from the British consul. They stated that she would be held at Halifax to await instructions from the British admiralty.

Mauritania at Halifax.

The Seditrix of the White Star line has put into Halifax. She too has passengers.

It was reported here but not confirmed that the Mauritania, while at sea, had left a wireless message to the British cruiser Essex, asserting that a German cruiser was following her and that the Mauritania asked assistance. The report was that the Essex came immediately and speeded for the Mauritania till she came into port.

DEFEAT OF GERMANS BY BELGIANS COSTS EIGHT THOUSAND MEN

LOSSES IN KAISER'S ARMY AT LIEGE SAID TO BE LARGER THAN FIRST REPORTED.

ALL BELGIUM AFLAME

Small Buffer State Roused to Fever Heat of Patriotic Enthusiasm as Result of Sensational Victory.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Brussels, Aug. 6.—The attack on Liege yesterday was executed by one army corps, while the Belgian force consisted of a mixed brigade supported by the artillery of the forts.

The battle was fought along a wide front and partially in the open fields. The Belgian troops carried out several furious counter attacks, throwing the Germans back and driving them up to their original positions.

Not an inch of ground was gained by the Germans during the fighting, and they suffered severe losses in dead and wounded.

A night attack on the Belgian position was awaited with great assurance by the Belgian troops, who had been strongly reinforced.

Further German troops were supposed to be on the way to reinforce the regiments which suffered so severely in the attack.

At about noon yesterday the German infantry attempted to carry by assault Fort Sarcion, to the northeast of Liege. The attacking party crept up under the cover of heavy artillery fire, but the Belgian defenders reserved their fire until the Germans came to close quarters.

When at a given signal the Belgians opened with a hail of bullets from rifle and machine guns, which wrought havoc among the Germans. The attackers soon lay in heaps of dead and wounded around the fort.

At the same time Fort Chaudfontaine, to the south of Liege, kept up a hot fire on another body of Germans who had seized a neighboring castle. The Belgian artillery reduced the building to smoking ruins. The Germans finally retired all along the line.

From Brussels.

It is thought here today that the Germans would have to begin a regular siege of Liege, as it was pointed out that their howitzers were too small to be efficacious against the heavy artillery of the Belgian forts.

Military authorities were of the opinion that if the Belgians could hold out at Liege, that one of the decisive battles of the war might be fought there soon.

HEAVY GERMAN LOSSES

One hundred men to between four and five thousand men, while they abandoned seventeen machine guns.

A squadron of Belgian lancers, according to another report, was completely destroyed after it had killed one hundred and fifty German Uhlans.

A force of twenty thousand Germans passed through Manhay, Luxembourg, Wednesday in the direction of Ayrault, Belgium.

Two disguised German officers, who were arrested today at Ostend had in their possession extensive military notes and plans of great value. They are to be shot.

ROUTED AGAINST GERMANS

The anti-German feeling throughout Belgium has become intense, and many German residents were arrested today and charged with espionage.

Every German discovered anywhere in the city is brought before the police, who have considerable trouble in protecting the prisoners from attacks by the excited crowds.

The patriotic enthusiasm here is extraordinary. Nearly half the citizens wear badges with the colors of Belgium, France and England combined.

Thousands of women of all classes have been enrolled in the Red Cross and are awaiting the arrival of the wounded from the battlefield around Liege. King Albert has handed over his palace to the Red Cross society and the queen will act as a nurse.

HOTELS AS HOSPITALS

Many hotels also have been transformed into Red Cross stations, and the citizens of Brussels have given up their carriages and motor cars for the transportation of the wounded.

Public subscriptions have been opened for the relief of the families of those who have fallen in the fighting.

Belgium Boy Scouts while patrolling yesterday captured a German cavalryman and arrested two German engineers believed to be spies.

DEVELOP CHARACTER GEARHART'S ADVICE

CHAUTAUQUA LECTURER GIVES MASTERFUL ADDRESS ON
"THE COMING MAN."

TALKS TO YOUNG MEN

Urges Youth to Lay Firm Physical and Intellectual Foundation as Basis of Right Living.

As the chauteauqua folder states, Col. G. A. Gearhart of Buffalo, N. Y., last night's lecturer, is "the kind of preacher you have always dreamed about, but thought you would never hear." With a thoughtful and worthwhile message, with a powerful and emphatic delivery, and in beautiful language replete with delightful metaphors and expressions, Col. Gearhart urged for the development of character and the conservation of God given faculties against wanton and careless destruction. "The Coming Man" and it was directed especially to the young men, although it held its gripping appeal to young and old men and women alike.

At the outset of his address, Col. Gearhart expressed his fear lest the "coming man" might be a woman. He saw fearful and positive indications that such might be the case. The lecturer at railroad stations and on gambling halls, dives and saloons, the cigarette smokers and dope fiends, are all young men, while in the schools and colleges, in the homes and in all sorts of helpful occupations, we find the young women working purposefully and assiduously, becoming the sponsor of virtue and greater era in the history of the world.

Since this was the case and since young men seemed to be exercising less responsibility in the cause of better coming living, Col. Gearhart's remarks were addressed to them for the most part. He first laid emphasis on the fact that the coming man must be well developed mentally, physically and morally. When people trained their mental faculties to the expense of their bodies, men have now come to realize that sound and vigorous physical organization is essential to success in life as the perfectly constructed machine is necessary to factory efficiency. We can feel proud in the modern age, Col. Gearhart declared, that we have taken a great advance from the men of antiquity. Our modern college athletes easily break the records of the Greek and Roman youths, while the average man of today is a giant in comparison with the heroes of the Trojan war. This physical foundation is necessary, he urged, because without it we can have neither intellectual nor spiritual efficiency.

After the body has been cared for the mind must be trained, and in this connection Col. Gearhart made a strong plea for the cause of education. He urged the importance of securing all the schooling they can possibly get. High school and college training, if it can be secured, training which is not a mere preparation for the future, but which is a part of the life itself, is the most successful, that they were most able to grasp and make the most of their opportunities.

Finally, with the foundation of physical and intellectual training, there comes the development of character and the faculty of securing and enjoying the higher and nobler things of life. Col. Gearhart warned against idleness and waste, against habits which tear down rather than build up; at the same time he advised generosity where it was called for. He pleaded for greater respect on the part of young men for womanhood, and pointed to the teachings of the gospels as the great source of inspiration for right living. He urged the faculties which he deemed important in the development of character was sentiment and he hoped young men would learn to cultivate it. The most successful way with idleness and approval at generous deeds, tremble with pity and compassion for suffering and pain and swell with indignation at gross misconduct and ungentlemanly actions.

Last evening's concert was given by the Fabien-Breach company and was most delightful. Miss Fabien was a beautiful soprano voice, clear, pure and responsive, and she was especially pleasing on the high notes. She won greatest applause when dressed in a costume of the 60's she sang "The Last Rose of Summer," and responded with an encore "Come! Through the River." Breach has a fine baritone voice and in addition is a good reader and entertainer. "The Soul of the Old Piano" was a unique and interesting number by him, in which he personified the spirit of music.

It will be with regret that those who have enjoyed the chauteauqua program will bid good-bye to its good times and entertainment at the closing session this evening. Tonight's program will be a concert by the Imperial English bell ringers and a lecture by Hon. J. K. Coddling, a former warden of the Kansas State Penitentiary on the subject "Shall We Punish or Reform Criminals?"

Half Million Boy Scouts Camp; Being Trained In Citizenship

New York, Aug. 6.—Along the river road that leads from Edgewater along the Palisades and back into Jersey trudge a company of tan clad figures, bareheaded and barefooted, with the unusual strain of carrying much camp luggage, but very erect and soldierly of bearing for all that. Two weeks of camp life has tanned the city lads a bit, taken off a few pounds of flesh and substituted wiry muscles, and the proven scouts were homeward bound.

In a hundred localities between Eastport and San Diego the scene can be duplicated, or has been duplicated or will be duplicated during the summer weeks, for there are nearly half a million Boy Scouts in the United States and every mother's son of them is counting on a summer vacation trip. Unconsciously and indirectly the minds of these half million boys are being directed and trained from a central office perched high up in a skyscraper on Broadway. The scouts are being trained in citizenship, in the use of the word "scouting" in real work. There lies the secret of the growth of the movement. The Boy Scouts are playing the game through to the finish. In Michigan, Boy Scouts are deputy fire wardens; in New Jersey they are deputy game wardens; in Boston they combed miles of country searching for a lost girl; in Washington they cut-poled the first night of the big crowd at a suffrage meeting, and in a dozen other cities they have become sanitary agents and have acted as first aid to reception committees at the World's Fair. The heroic performance of the scouts at last year's memorable gathering of the blue and the gray at Gettysburg is still fresh. Whenever they are called upon to do a thing, they do it. They are taught and are given a chance to play work of some kind and the organizers declare the youngsters of the country take the idea so fast that the problem now is not how to interest boys and make membership grow, but how to get men enough to look after the scout companies as they spring up and grow into regiments. They point to Michigan and say they have saved more than a million dollars to the state by detecting and giving warning of forest fires. Each scout reports the

HIGH CLASS SOCIETY ACTS TO VISIT CITY

DuBrook's Hippodrome is a Novel
Event With Various Interesting
Numbers—Will Entertain
Fair Week.

Janesville's fair week is to have a more or less high class society acts, from DuBrook's Hippodrome. Spectacular and dangerous acts comprise their program of thrills and enthusiastic stunts, all which are pleasing to the public. The following names are E. E. Morgan, general agent for the Hippodrome, on his novelty acts and characterizations are interesting to read, as they vividly describe the sensation at numbers of the program.

"Roy Wilcox (Red) is just a funny fool. Anyhow, I got so used to clown stuff in the eleven years I was connected with the Barnum & Bailey circus that I had come to consider myself a clown, but had to face Roy and his assistants with their donkeys. Roy's red hair and general make up needs no lamp black and carmine to make him match up with the donkeys. Don't try to fool Roy; he's too long at a time, it is dangerous."

"And we have some manage act this year. The ladies and gentlemen in charge of this feature are the horses under perfect control. They have new steps, all the latest ones—do not express it, these are new creations. When the band begins to play the tango, hesitation and the tango, snooker on the moon shine hills of Tennessee broke away from the pack by slipping his collar, let a yelp out of him that would almost bring down the moon. The tango, snooker on the moon, towards the west, side under full cry, hot on the trail of a stray collie."

"Red-headed Jim Conroy, the whipper, sprang on the back of Sea Green, a thorough bred, single chase horse and rode five miles across the city before the recovered the runaway Snooker. Mr. DuBrook had to pay the owner of the dead collie $25. It seems that Snooker is a kind of horse that seems to indicate that Tennessee fudes are not confined to the human phase of life in the land of moonshine beverages."

DuBrook's thirty thousand dollar stable of running horses, including the ten thousand dollar black beauty Cheeky that won seventeen straight races last year will run at Janesville. Cheeky is a registered thorough bred race horse by Caesarina out of Blue Beauty, a Kentucky property. Cheeky displays a high grade of horse intelligence. She shows real disappointment when she loses a race and a different spirit when she wins. She is as sensitive as a cat and a horse ever gets. There are four more horses in the string. Gin Ricky of the same parentage a chucky chestnut colt that promises some record performances this year. Snow Ball a natural beauty, also a high grade Cheeky out of Blue Bell by Royal Flush and Miss Kingsbury by Dutchland out of Loving Cup, a long distance mare that travels in the fastest of company.

This string of runners are the pride of the DuBrook family—they would make any stable proud to own them."

TRAVELERS LEAVE ENGLAND IN HASTE

Mrs. George S. Parker Lands in New York—Mrs. Holmes Cables From London She Sails Next Week.

Anxiety over Janesville people who have been marooned in Europe owing to the war complications was lessened today when David Holmes received a cable from his wife from London, England. Mrs. Holmes, Miss Elizabeth Holmes and Mr. David Holmes would sail for home on the Carmania on August 11th. Mrs. George S. Parker and daughter, who sailed some days ago on the President Lincoln, are expected to reach Janesville this evening. According to the newspaper reports the President Lincoln had an exciting trip across and pursued by a foreign warship for several days. The reports of the last few days of the trip say that passengers who arrived on the Kaiser Wilhelm II and the President Lincoln on Wednesday claimed to have heard the firing of guns as they arrived at Sandy Hook about 3 a. m. Some of those who ventured on deck said that no ships were to be seen. The President Lincoln told of a thrilling story of the flight of the liner that was believed to be a hostile warship Tuesday night. Believing danger was passed, officers of the ship announced that the ball-room might be lighted. Just as the dancing was at its height, the watch lighted the southern horizon. Immediately stewards ran through the vessel again ordering lights out and the President Lincoln plunged forward, its engines racing, and all sailing lights were extinguished and the big ship steamed along in total darkness. Not until the three mile limit was reached were the lights again turned on.

Life Need Not Be Narrow.
Our life is just as narrow as we let it be. If we live in a lonely country place miles from a railway, we can study the plants and animals about us until we come to understand something of the secrets of the universe. If our lot is in a great city, we have opportunities of studying human nature—seeing with our own eyes the development of characters as strange as ever novellists put into his books. Multitudes of men walked the same streets with Dickens without seeing a hundredth part of what he saw. It is the power to see, and not the object to be seen, that we lack, and this power may be, to a certain extent, cultivated by practice.—Exchange.

FOREIGN FARMERS BENEFIT BY TARIFF

Ten Months of Failure is Recorded in Figures by Washington Correspondent.

(By Winfield Jones).
Washington, C., Aug. 6.—In the ten months ended April, 1914, the value of foreign foodstuffs imported into the United States increased $10,000,000, or 1,000,000 a month. This money, which should have gone to the American farmer, went to foreign farmers.

In the same period the exports of American foodstuffs decreased $64,415,000 or $6,441,500 a month. The adverse balance against the American farmer, so far as dealings with the outside world is concerned, is $75,000,000 in ten months. During the ten months ended April, 1914, there were imported 20,558,998 bushels of oats, as against 714,767 bushels imported during the same period ended April, 1913. Comparing the same periods, there were imported 1,854,057 bushels of wheat against 769,329; other breadstuffs, $2,602,952, against $1,382,630; fruits, $26,155,168, against $21,435,382; nuts, $722,217, against $253,513; cheese, $9,392,438, against $7,883,399; olive oil, $6,444,247, against $5,815,810; prepared vegetables, $9,916,545, against $7,772,107; fresh fruit, $1,433,399, against $1,038,831. The importation of eggs during the ten months ending April, 1914, amounted to 5,042,765 dozens, valued at $1,000,000.

These are staples produced by American farmers, and the tariff reduces the duty upon these articles and opens the market to foreign farmers. The foreigner has seized this opportunity and is now making $1,000,000 a month more than formerly went to the American farmer.

The consumer gets no benefit from this tariff reduction. The price has not gone down on a single article mentioned. The benefit has gone to the foreigner who has seized this business to the American farmer. The new tariff throws the business to the foreign farmer, who, with the aid of the tariff, is able to sell his goods at a price as much as he did before. The only loser is the American farmer.

This loss of $1,000,000 a month covers only ten months of the new tariff. It is natural that the loss should be greater as soon as foreign farmers are awakened to the splendid opportunity offered by the American market. The moment the farmer takes advantage of this opportunity the more the American farmer will lose.

The only way to prevent this loss to the American farmer is to put the tariff on the foreigner. Let the farmer begin by voting the republican ticket in November.

All of the textile schedules of the Underwood tariff had no effect January 1, 1914, when the rates on wool goods became operative, the remainder of the textile tariff having been in force from October 1, 1913. The Underwood tariff was signed April of this year was the fourth month during which the new duties had been collected on all kinds of textile goods, and the imports for this period are the lowest since the tariff of the competition that textile manufacturers may expect under this law. As the foreign trade becomes more familiar with our textile markets the imports are likely to increase, so that the figures for the first four months of its operation afford a conservative basis on which to form a judgment as to the effect of the new tariff.

The woolen industry is the chief sufferer from the increase in foreign competition, this being due to the woolen duties having been suddenly lowered from a much higher level than were the rates on other class of textiles.

The salient fact is that $33,313,000 worth of textile goods came into the United States during the first four months under the Underwood tariff, as compared with $64,750,000 in the corresponding period of 1913, an increase of $19,033,000 for the four months, or an increase at the rate of $4,758,250 per month.

The census of 1909 shows 742,529

wage earners employed in textile manufacturing, producing $1,225,086, 444 worth of goods per year, and receiving $25,514,233 in wages. At that rate of production and earnings, the annual increase of $57,099,000 in the imports of textiles under the Underwood law is depriving 34,727 textile operatives of employment who would otherwise be receiving $1,716,542 in wages in American mills. The existing depression in the textile industry makes this conclusion unfavorable.

Labor suffers equally with the farmer and the manufacturing under Professor Wilson's administration and the democratic congress.

Use Gasoline Gas For Lighting and Cooking

With the Giant Gas Machine you can do your cooking and lighting either in your city or country home. This machine is an innovation in the home as it makes gas out of gasoline at a cost of from 70 to 90 cents per thousand feet.

They are absolutely safe as the Gasoline is buried in the ground to the depth of from 3 ft. to 10 ft.

We are putting these machines in on trial and if not entirely satisfactory we take them out at no expense whatever to the user. We will have a complete plant in operation at the Janesville Fair next week and will be pleased to give a demonstration of what we can do with it. Call and see it.

KID MAHONEY HAS WONDERFUL RECORD

Racine Boxer Who Meets Young Scotty August Twelfth Has Long List of Victories.

After glancing over the record of Kid Mahoney, the featherweight boxer of Racine, Wis., who will meet Young Scotty, the Jones Islander, Milwaukee in the exhibition of the local club on August twelfth, have drawn the conclusion that Scotty will have a fight on his hands. The main bout in the next exhibition promises to be fast and clever, as both of the matched men are the best in the state.

Mahoney has it on Scotty when it comes to a reputation, for the Racine kid has been meeting the best of them and his record is as clean as a whistle. Scotty having less experience than his older rival, Mahoney's cleverness has won him numerous bouts with boxers heavier than himself of national reputation. The Racine kid has the combined qualities of speed and ability to land mighty wallops with his shifty and wily tactics. No boxer has yet been able to land on him hard enough to knock him for the count because half the time he was not where his rival aimed his blow.

In the year of 1912 Mahoney battled around in Wisconsin with the best of the 116 pounders. Including Kid Mahoney, Young Wallace, Joe Drexel, Bud Turner and Christie Zanders. His most notable bout that year was with Eddie Moran in four rounds when Mahoney won a clean victory over the West-ern favorite at Frisco. At Madison, April 24, in the year named, Mahoney knocked out Young Olson in four rounds. Johnnie Dessert also fell to the kid's prowess in Milwaukee in the same year.

Last year Mahoney graduated into the big time and invaded New York city and fought fourteen bouts. He was able to win all but two of these. He was the star of the night in New York city when Mahoney knocked out Young Herman in an exhibition match. Returning to Wisconsin Mahoney battled Mattie Mahoney in two draws, one in Milwaukee and the other in his home town, Racine.

Young Mahoney has met three of the best featherweights and has held his own in all of the matches. Mahoney and Mahoney battled Ritchie Mitchell in a good draw before the championship match in Milwaukee, which was staged at the semi-annual of the big match in Racine. Mahoney and Mahoney fought Mattie Mahoney in two draws, one in Milwaukee and the other in his home town, Racine.

CARDINALS PLAYING AT EDGERTON TODAY

Janesville Team Meets Edgerton City Nine in Attraction at Picnic This Afternoon.

This morning the Janesville Cardinals will be having a little war all their own up in Edgerton against the Edgerton city team in nine rounds of baseball. The Cardinals are the new strength because of the loss of several of the regulars, but George Crandall, his trusty gun-point and chief flag bearer, will be on the mound for the Cardinals, which will probably be enough artillery for the Edgerton men.

Scouts bring back the reports that the Cardinals will have a hard time forcing the Edgerton crowd of the trenches and the Cards have taken along their biggest bludgeons to chase the Edgertonites away from the spoils of victory. Hall will be Crandall's partner in the crucial warfare this afternoon and the rest of the Card army will be as follows: Porter, 1b.; Butters, 2b.; M. Ryan, ss.; J. Ryan or Trevonah, 3b.; Berg, Sullivan and Kuykendall, fielders.

On Sunday the Whitewater regiment will invade the Card territory and the battle will be staged at the Park Association's diamond.

Cardinals Win.

The Janesville Cardinals routed the Edgerton nine in the morning game, winning by the score of 15 to 2. After the first skirmish, in which the Edgerton team scored two tallies, the Cardinals walloped the ball to the corners of the lot and ran away from their rivals. The Edgerton lineup was as follows: Bunn and Whitford, p.; Hanson, c.; G. Whitford, ss.; Greave, 1b.; Aspinwall, 2b.; L. Whitford, 3b.; Radeant, cf.; Hallett, lf.; Harrison, rf.

BOSTON BRAVES HIT THEIR WINNING PACE

Braves' Rampage Helps McGraw's Giants to Keep Ahead of Trail—ing Cubs in National League.

By Hal Sheridan.

New York, Aug. 6.—They were a long time doing it, but that fact does not take anything away from the feat of the Boston Braves in making good for all those who had him won't say for them in the pre-season chatter back in March and April. Hiking one's self from the hold to the middle deck with prospects of grabbing a better berth later on shows there must be considerable class lurking about. On their last western trip the Braves hung up a record for the league in their climb to the first division. Pittsburgh is Boston's only rival insofar as a speedy switch in standing is concerned, only the Pirates made their record dash in the opposite direction.

It was everlastingly keeping at it that finally brought the Braves out of the hole and played with all the baseball luck against them at the opening of the season and simply could not lose their Jinx. Johnny Evers, jawed just as hard over decisions, however, as if the team were fighting for the lead. The rest of the gang kept going and on the last swing they swept through like a prairie fire, leaving nothing but ruins and ashes in their wake. George Stallings, who has been a higher spot than fourth place, which spot the Braves occupied and had marked with their initials when they finished the last invasion of the west. He has every expectation of giving the team going and even of giving the Giants a battle through August and September.

Incidentally McGraw should extend Stallings a vote of thanks, it was while the Giants were showing signs of withering up and blowing away that the Braves started on their rampage. McGraw's men were hammered and almost massacred in St. Louis, and they led the league in the series with a fifty-fifty break. It was an uncertain outlook, but the Braves were walloping teams that might have benefited by the Giant hesitation, and McGraw's lead remained intact. Just as long as the Braves kept hammering at the other clubs and the Giants stick to their gait, McGraw will be drawing nearer and nearer the goal of his ambition, a goal no pitcher has ever reached—a fourth consecutive pennant.

The Giants appear to be primed for their drive into the stretch. The hardest part of the season is still ahead. Through the withering days of August and on through September and early October the old pep begins to ooze, and the eye to show signs of desiring to wobble away from the fast ones.

But the return from the Western invasion found McGraw's pitching staff in its best form. Matty, Tetreau and Marquard had hit the old winning gait and the prospects appear rosy for McGraw.

With the old Mackian strength asserting itself, the Athletics have continued their way towards the World's Series swag. Each uprising of other clubs has, in measure, only served to build up the ramparts a little bit higher around Connie Mack. Tearing loose in reckless fashion the New York Yankees showed new life in mid-July. They peeled their way from the bottom of the league and nailed it high on Coogan's Bluff. This all but put the kibosh on the Jennings crew. The Yanks cut them down without mercy. The rampage of the White Sox which did away with at easy, likewise also helped Mack along, for the Callahanites had broken when they finally met Mack. Washington appears not to have the all the stuff needed to give Philadelphia a fight. The Boston Red Sox it looks now are the only ones who will be contended.

It is history that a ball club doesn't win a pennant all alone. It is a team effort. The team rises up and tears the lining out of the nearest rival and the leader pulls away leaving the gap yawning without doing any more than holding a steady gaze. The Yankees were the old battle royals between the Cubs and Giants were hottest, the Brooklyn Dodgers could be depended on to give the Giants a life at critical times. Though they might be hammered by the team to post by other teams the Dodgers would sail into the Cubs when Chicago needed games the most and rip off large strips of gorey pell.

Washington, likewise was long the Nemesis of Cleveland. In the days when Washington was first in war, first in peace, and last in the American League, and Cleveland was to be reckoned with. Washington would sail into the Naps like champions and shove them down just when the Naps were closing in on the Athletics. And it was Long Tom Hughes, easy on other clubs, who could be depended on to mow those Naps down like wheat under a sharp scythe.

FOUR NEW RECORDS SET BY STALLION AT GRAND RAPIDS

Four Year Old Pacing Marvel Gives Record-breaking Performance at Grand Rapids.

At the Grand Rapids, Michigan, race track yesterday the 4-year-old pacing stallion William, who in 1913 set the record for his age and gait at 2:05, and at Cleveland two weeks ago put the mark for four-year-olds at 2:02, lowered those figures to 2:00 flat in the second heat of the 2:04 purse.

Incidentally, he gathered in several other championships, to-wit: By pacing the first heat in 2:00½, he tied the best previous mile by a pacer in a race, the honor having been held jointly by Star Pointer, Minor Heir and Evelyn W. Then in the second heat William paced in 2:00, which cleaned up the race record, he had just tied by half a second and also established a new mark for two winning heats.

Three-Heat Mark. Then there was but one race championship left to be obliterated—that for three heats, made in 1911 by Independence Boy when he paced in 2:02½, 2:01½ and 2:02, a total of 6:06½, with an average rate per mile of 2:02-1-5. William made short work of that performance when he stepped a third heat in 2:02½, making his total 6:03, with an average of 2:01.

As all previous record-holders were aged horses while William technically still is a colt, his work yesterday is on that account additionally impressive. Horsemen now acclaim William the greatest pacer ever foaled and predict that if he is specially prepared for a tilt against the watch the present best record by a pacer, the 1:55½ of Minor Heir, will be glimmering.

William, a color a bright bay, is a very good looking stallion, made on rather fine lines, and in racing form looks like a gelding. His breeding, while not fashionable, is good, his sire, Abe J., a pacer with a record of 2:10, being a son of the trotter San Mateo (2:13½), he by Simmons (2:28) son of George Wilkes (2:32), champion trotting stallion who served his first first. Blair reported to Washington, although he had also signed with Baltimore. Before the matter is thoroughly settled Grif will appear, perhaps, before the "commish."

Pitcher Harry Swann has been unconditionally released by President Weegman of the Chicago Federals. Swann was signed for one year by Manager Tinker, but has been unable to get in condition, and the president of the Chifeds made a cash settlement with him. Austin Walsh, utility outfielder, who had signed with the Green Bay team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league last year, has also been released by the Chifeds.

WISCONSIN FOOTBALL DOPE FOR THIS FALL

Varsity Eleven Secure Services of Tom Wilson, Greatest of All Line Coaches, for 191 Season.

A good start and a bad finish tells the story of the failure of the 1913 Wisconsin varsity football eleven to win the conference championship, and now that a new season is near, attention at Madison toward creating a more successful squad has been concentrated in a lively manner.

Lack of sufficient individual coaching last season is probably the best cause for a poor showing. Every man was a star, but playing together they failed to show their caliber, as in former years.

The dope this season looks quite different. The biggest thing that has happened at Madison for some years occurred recently when Tom Wilson, once a Princeton star, and declared to be the All-American representative on line coaching, which places him as the very best in the country, was secured to coach the Badger line this fall. He is bound to succeed, and the responsibility left Head Coach Juneau over almost entire supervision has been taken away, so that "Bill" can resort to training the backfield almost exclusively. Then there is "Big" Driver and Tom Jones, both well versed with modern coaching methods. The coaching staff at Wisconsin this fall is the most complete of any school in the country.

Excepting the stars who have graduated from the 1912 title team, and last years unsuccessful eleven, a good display of material is still in school. The loss of Tandy fullback, Otis, end; Powell, center, and Butler, tackle, will be keenly felt, not to speak of Tenny, Van Gent, Martin and Alexander, halfbacks; Lange, end, and Zinke, sub-tackle. Seven giants are in line for the tackle and guard positions. They are Captain Keeler, Buck, Gelein, McMaster, Schmidt, Gardner and Ambler. Of this number Keeler is the lightest, weighing about 180 during the season, while the other men weigh between 200 and 220. There is little doubt but what Buck will assume his old position at left tackle, with Gelein at left guard. Keeler may play in fullback position. The end positions he open to two good men, Stavrum, Albright, Mitchell and Tomasek looking good.

The backfield is weak, as Bellows and Cummings are the only old and widely experienced men in school. Davies, Clayton and Kreuz will fight for the fullback position. October 3rd is Wisconsin's first battle of the fall season, with Lawrence as opponent. Purdue, Chicago, Minnesota and Illinois will face the Badgers also. Practice begins September 20th, although all men are to be in training by August 16th.

Sport Snap Shots

Joe Rivers, the coast lightweight, having a new idea of wearing of criticism from fight fans, Rivers declares that to prove he is willing to meet any one in his class he will put a bunch of names in a hat and fight the man whose name is drawn out first. Rather he will allow the newspaper men to put the names in the hat and they can select the name themselves. Joe doesn't even care to know what names go in. "I'm sick of hearing people say that I purposely run out of matches, and so I'm selecting this way of choosing my next match, so that there can be no question." The thing will probably go through as Rivers has suggested. Tom McCarey, the coast promoter, is pleased with the notion, largely for its originality. It's a new stunt, should attract attention and probably draw a big house.

Frank Bancroft, secretary of the Reds, who is planning a baseball tour to the exposition, has announced that the plans for same are now about complete. An all-star team from each of the big leagues will be picked, and after barnstorming through the west they will arrive at Frisco and demonstrate the national pastime to all who care to pay the small sum of 50 cents or $1. Bancroft is convinced that the thing will be a great success, and many of the players are showing a large enthusiasm. A small jaunt to Honolulu is also being arranged, that some of our more prominent ball players might enjoy the cultivating and refining benefits of foreign travel.

Clark Griffith and Jack Dunn, the Baltimore manager, are fighting bitterly over the possession of a young man named John Blair. He is said to be a very clever outfielder and was unearthed somewhere in West Virginia. Blair says that he saw him first. Blair reported to Washington, although he had also signed with Baltimore. Before the matter is thoroughly settled Grif will appear, perhaps, before the "commish."

The Brooklyn players say that Ollie O'Mara made more plays at third than any other shortstop in any league. Ollie is always up on his toes and eager to cover the third sack whenever the third baseman is called away from it. Ah, there, Ollie!

THE RATE DECISION.

With railroad managers so fully engaged upon questions arising from the European situation and the consequent stoppage of ocean carriage, it has become necessary to consider the decision of the commerce commission in the eastern rate case without the assistance of traffic experts. To make matters worse, the decision was in such a form that even the experts confess themselves unable to reach any hard and fast conclusions, until after thorough study of the hundred-page document given out in Washington late Saturday afternoon.

Some general aspects of the decision challenge attention. Five of the commissioners agree that the revenues of the petitioning carriers as a whole are insufficient, while the other two so far from conceding that the proper remedy would be to grant the proposed five per cent advance to all three and a half years ago a unanimous commission declared that the revenues of these roads were ample. One of the minority commissioners asserts, what the Wall Street Journal has frequently said, that the commission was wrong to confuse and delay the determination of this case by bringing in a necessarily laborious investigation into the technique of railroad operation. Such an inquiry, proper enough, but could far better have been made after the rate question had been disposed of. We have the judgment of two members of the commission that there was no danger that the general advance proposed might unduly swell the revenues of the carriers or burden commerce, even on the assumption that many operating economies and improvements in the methods of assessing for terminal services could be effected.

Even the trunk lines, therefore, have not been wholly defeated. They have established their need of greater net revenue, in the public interest as well as in their own. To anyone who appreciates how helpless the carriers are of themselves to adopt any of the other means of relief urged by the commission, the decision will appear in the light of a moral victory. Its immediate practical effects, nevertheless, promise to be so slight as to be almost unappreciable. It should be remembered that the railroads west of Pittsburgh and Buffalo, which alone obtain any advances whatever, are not to have all that they asked for, but only what they asked for in respect to a part of their traffic.

Not only are coal, coke, ore and certain other commodities, which together make up a very large proportion of the tonnage of these carriers, excepted from the advance, but the advance is limited to traffic moving wholly within Central Freight association territory. Even there, it is further limited by the refusal to allow any advance upon lake-and-rail rates and the effect thereof upon competing rail rates.

On the whole, no sounder or more temperate characterization of the majority report could well be drawn than that of Commissioner Daniels: "It is hardly an adequate remedy to afford the carriers relief only when their returns have reached the well-nigh desperate level now shown in Central Freight association territory. Even before this inadequate return is evidenced, higher rates are warranted." Such a solution of the present case would have done no less than justice to the carriers and would have promoted the welfare of the community they serve."

It will be more than surprising if this latest fledgling of the commission does not in due time come home to roost.

A MASTERPIECE.

All honor to Sir Edward Grey. In his address to the house of commons in discussing the possibilities of England's entering into the European war he uttered a masterpiece that will go into history as one of the great speeches of modern times. It may have lacked the fervor of the outpourings of some of the silver-tongued orators we have known, but it was none the less brilliant for its simplicity and the dignity and moderation of the language used under circumstances encompassed with so many difficulties.

Great Britain's attitude in the crisis that now embroils the whole of Europe was clearly set forth by the British foreign secretary. Her wholehearted efforts to preserve the peace were recounted. And now that the hour had come when the British nation must take the momentous step that meant either a neutrality of doubtful honor or a plunge into the seething vortex of armed conflict Sir Edward dispassionately pointed out the duty of his country as he saw it. There was no appeal to race hatred. No jingoism. No claptrap. The occasion was one of the gravest in England's long history, and the foreign secretary's every word showed that none realized it better than he. It is no wonder that the house of commons should have been roused to cheers by his masterful effort. It is no wonder that it should have prompted a declaration of loyal support from the leader of the opposition and a promise from John E. Redmond, the nationalist leader, that Ireland undivided would stand behind the nation to the last.

In a great crisis the peoples of Great Britain always have sunk their differences and presented a solid front to the enemy. The nation would not have lived up to tradition had she done otherwise at this time. And whatever the final outcome, she may look back with profound gratification to the fact that she sounded the call to battle only after she had done everything in her power to preserve an honorable peace. The brightest lustre of British statesmanship emerges from this momentous trial un tarnished.

SENSELESS WORRY.

Sensationalism and ignorance are responsible for a great deal of needless anxiety for the citizens of the United States who are traveling in Europe. To any intelligent person who has been abroad it is obvious that the tales of distress are exaggerated. Weird stories of ill-treatment in Austria are absolutely unworthy of belief, because, for one thing, they emanate from the professional Chauvinist press or else from the type of American whose description of his travels is confined solely to the money he has spent in tips.

Of course it is uncomfortable for a great many of the stranded tourists. But at most it is nothing more than temporary discomfort and excitement. And inasmuch as it will give even the most inarticulate of them something to talk about for the rest of their lives, it is a blessing that will be listened to with a grateful heart.

Meanwhile there are still enough neutral countries adjacent to the belligerent powers whither Americans can escape with comparative ease. Those in France, for instance, should have little difficulty in getting over the Spanish border. For those in Germany the way is open to Denmark, Switzerland and Italy, while the latter country should still be accessible from Austria. Once the money situation is relieved, and the government renders it possible for the travellers to cash their checks, there is not the slightest reason why their sojourn in Europe should be cause for alarm. Nobody is going to hurt them. And it is to be hoped nobody is going to believe wild yarns of ill-treatment that come from cheap and prejudiced sources.

Now that we have the banner crops of many of the next thing is to get transportation facilities for moving them to the markets. Unfortunately there is no merchant marine sailing under the stars and stripes so that one great trouble will be in conveying the foodstuffs to a foreign market, but even this may be overcome sooner.

The ocean greyhounds that are either speeding across the Atlantic or waiting in some American port for an opportunity to slip away, realize that the long path is not as safe as it was a few weeks ago when only keelboats were to be feared. Now cruisers from hostile nations seek their capture.

Cleaning up the river banks by the city is progressing and the next thing is to have them kept clean by the abutting property-owners. When they are all cleaned up the commissioners should pass an ordinance relative to their being kept clean in the future.

The whole nation waits with anxiety for the news of President Wilson's wife's condition. They sorrow with him in his anxiety and pray for the speedy recovery of his helpmate.

The Country Editor.

A small boy has written the following essay on the editor: "I don't know how papers came to be in the world. I think the editor was in the bushes till after the flood and then went out and wrote things up and has been here ever since. I don't think he ever died. I never saw one and never heard of one getting killed. Our paper is a mighty good one, but the editor goes without underwear all winter, hardly ever wears socks and pants ain't paid his subscription since the paper started. I asked pa if that was why the editor dressed so poorly and he said to go to bed when he had his shirt washed. "Then pa got mad and gave me a lichen. If the editor makes a mistake people get awfully mad and talk awful about him and say they won't read the paper and try to get everybody to quit advertising in it, but when they make a mistake themselves they get mad if the editor says anything about it in his paper. A doctor can use a long word if he wants to, but if an editor uses a long word he has to spell it. Any college can make a business man, or preacher, or a doctor, but an editor has to be born."

Dinner Stories

"Mary," asked the young lady's little brother, "did Mr. Evans take any of the hats or umbrellas from Austria? When he was going home last night?"

"Hats! Umbrellas! What on earth are you talking about, Jack? Of course he didn't! Why should he?"

"That's just what I want to know. But as he was going out I heard him say, 'Now Mary, I'm just going to steal one,' and—" "Why? What is the matter?" continued the terrible child looking in a puzzled way first at his sister's blushes, then at his father's smiles.

When Irving Cobb was rewrite man for the New York Evening World he left the office one night, highly incensed, after a spat with Charles Chapin, city editor. He returned the next morning, still ruffled, to find that Chapin was absent. "Where is the old man?" he inquired. An assistant informed him that Chapin was ill. "Dear me!" said Cobb, much concerned, "I hope it's nothing trivial."

He was a long-suffering traveler on a little single-track railroad, and he complained bitterly about the lateness of the train and the irregularity of the service. The employe remonstrated in virtuous indignation. "I've been on this here line, sir," he began, "upward of eight years, and—" "Have you, indeed?" interrupted the traveler sympathetically. "At what station did you get on?"

HOW WILL COLONIES OF WARRING COUNTRIES BE CHANGED ABOUT?

VAST EMPIRES OF NATIONS IN DANGER OF BEING ATTACKED BY POWERS.

WAR MAY CHANGE MAP

List is Given of Dependencies of Nations Involved in War and Their Military Strength.

(By Associated Press.)

Four out of the six powers of Europe have today taken the step of declaring war on Germany. The result is that the world is now divided into two camps, the Allies and the Central Powers. The Allies include Great Britain, France, Russia, and the United States. The Central Powers include Germany, Austria-Hungary, and the Ottoman Empire. The war has the potential to change the map of the world, as the colonies of the warring nations are at stake. The list of dependencies of the nations involved in the war is as follows:

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me." — Mrs. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

A terrific arraignment of the "get-rich-quick" idea that has become almost a national calamity. How a happy home was transformed by a pretty woman's natural longing for costly apparel and luxurious living.

CHAPTER I.

Paradise on Easy Terms.

Young Mrs. Reynolds sat on the steps of her new bungalow, a home of her own with all the conveniences of a city apartment—gas, hot and cold water, modern plumbing. Only fifty minutes from Herald square, yet removed from the strife and turmoil of the crowded metropolis. A place to rear children where they could romp and play. Close to schools and churches. Excellent markets. Half an acre of ground to raise her own vegetables and chickens. A fine view of the bay and plenty of good air. A spot to live as God meant her to live. Only five hundred dollars down and the rest the same as rent!

Glorious aggrandizement of suburban life; vivid picture from the land-shark's brush. The painter struggles to express on canvas the subtle power of nature; with what facile flow of verbal coloring does this other artist reveal its charm!

Jane wanted a home and so did Bob, her husband, and, with their limited means, that meant a home in the suburbs. At the first inspection of this modern Elysium the agent persuaded Reynolds to invest. What better could they do, he argued. The pretty little house, new and clean and so easy to care for. And the land; why, that alone was worth the price. Think of the saving a garden would mean and what a joy those new-laid eggs! Jane, somehow, was not riotously enthusiastic, but Bob was and she acquiesced. The task of moving had fallen to her, for her husband's duties kept him at the office even on such a momentous occasion as this.

"Oh, if the vans would only come," she sighed. "What in the world can have happened? It is four o'clock and they promised to have them here by noon."

Down the road, the one that the Utopian Land company's map dignified as Sunset street, there appeared a vision of hope. A soiled, swaggering, red-faced, blue-aproned vision.

"There's one of the movers now," exclaimed the young wife. She advanced to meet him.

"Goodness, what makes you so late? Mr. Green said you'd be here by twelve o'clock. How will we ever get moved in tonight?"

"That's what's bothering me, madam. The trucks are down at the entrance to this paradise and Rockefeller himself doesn't own enough gasoline to get them up through the sand. The boss said they was finished streets. They're finished the way they were when Staten Island was discovered, but that's all. We've been trying for hours, putting boards in front of the wheels, but it's no go. I've got to get teams from somewhere. That'll be extra. That's why I came up to see you. Is it all right?"

"Oh, I don't know. I guess so. You'll have to settle that with Mr. Reynolds. But for mercy sakes do anything necessary to get us moved in. I've waited here for four hours."

"We'll do our best, ma'am, but it'll take some time yet. And I don't hanker after many of these Staten Island jobs."

Mrs. Reynolds went back for another inspection.

"It is pretty," she said, "but it's a little lonesome. If they would only hurry! And I do wish Bob could have got off. He would have stirred those stupid men up some way."

She had spent the hours of her long vigil planning a place for all their goods and chattels. She had as complete a picture of the ensemble as a stage manager has of his setting. That ought to expedite matters, she thought, when the furniture did come.

After what seemed another interminable wait she sighted an approaching wagon. It was an ordinary truckman's cart, such as is used in construction work. It was piled high with bureaus, tables, chairs and boxes in a jumbled, anomalous mass that augured many breaks and scratches.

"This is the best I could do, ma'am," called the driver, as he brought the load to a halt at the door. "There ain't a moving van within five miles and it'd be dark before we got one. But we'll get you in all right."

"Oh, do be careful, won't you?" she answered. "I wouldn't heap things so."

Startling feats of prestidigitization and the energy moving men are wont to display when their task is nearing an end soon disposed of the load. The contents of the last wagon were disappearing when Reynolds arrived. He had had a hard day at the office and a tiresome trip on subway, ferry and trolley that seemed doubly long because of the suspense. But he bounded into the house like a schoolboy and, ignoring the presence of the movers, clasped his wife in his arms and implanted a resounding kiss.

"Hello, honey," he cried as he released her and stood surveying the room. "Isn't this great? A castle all our own!" Then—as he looked at her—"and a tired, dirty, but beautiful little queen. And she is just going to sit down and not stir another time until slaves have done her bidding and served her a royal repast of—"

"Bologna and potato salad, my lord!"

"Don't you believe it. Look, Jane." He unwrapped a package hurriedly and disclosed a two-pound sirloin.

"That's good for tired muscles and this for tired nerves. Sparkling Burgundy fresh from a Staten Island brewery. We're going to have a regular house warming and I'm going to prepare it."

"Let's get everything in first, Bob. That's the last load. Did you see what they brought it in?"

"Yes, where's the van?"

"They couldn't get it up here. You'll have to settle with the men. They said there would be an extra charge for the wagon."

He went out to conclude negotiations. Presently he called her:

"Jane, come out and look over the estate. I bought some seeds and I'm going to start a garden tomorrow. And dig for clams."

Fundamental training is the necessary thing that is lacking today.

Even the trade school lacks these fundamentals. The boy studying to be a carpenter would be a better carpenter if he first lived in the woods and understood just how much a tree will do for man. In the trade school the boy makes something out of what he has. He does not think back of that. He does not realize that the wood makes fire for him, that the fire can be used as tools, that the tree even produces food. He would learn a value of woods such as he could never learn in the schoolroom, and, knowing see, dear," he said as they locked arms and strolled down the path, bordered on either side by a new, scraggly box hedge. "I brought something for you."

From a bulging pocket he drew out packages of seeds and bulbs.

"Flowers of all kinds, honey!—juncos, hyacinths, daffodils—"

Why Mother Smiled. George—"Didn't you notice that I pressed your foot at dinner tonight?" Ethel—"Why, it wasn't my foot you pressed. Oh, George, I wondered why mother was smiling so sweetly at the minister!"—Judge.

ALONE IN THE WILDERNESS

By JOSEPH KNOWLES

Copyright, 1913, by Small, Maynard & Co.

With the proper instruction they would build their own log cabins in winter, and their lean-tos in summer. It will be a purely scientific and educational movement.

In this college of nature the man rests while he labors. The life in the outdoors gives him new health, and every day he lives he will find new wonders. He will marvel at the companionship of the wild animal.

All the luxuries of life will be left behind.

There will be no need of the theater. The forest itself has many comedies, dramas and tragedies. There will be no demand for such amusement. Games will be played, and they will differ from what is in study rooms.

I think under such conditions the bringing back of almost extinct blood in horses could be worked out. There would be great opportunity to raise the Morgan horse, which the United States and Canadian governments are trying so hard to get. This horse is known as the American Arab and is the hardest and speediest known. In such a country they would thrive.

In am convinced that such a college of nature would result in a marked change in child literature. Through the books which would be written the child would come to love the woods rather than to fear them.

It would be my intention, while the life in this colony was progressing, to furnish the outside world with reports of the work and the methods used. Such material would play its part along educational lines. It could be used in the regular public school curriculum with powerful effect, and the something that is now lacking in our school system would be established.

It is all very well to dissect a flower in the classroom, and to demonstrate the fact that the intestines of a clam run through its heart, but such education is useless unless the student knows what the smell of the earth is like and unless he knows what it is to wade up to his knees in the cold mud and dig for clams.

This phase of it hadn't come to my mind before, and the idea of the second trip immediately occurred to me.

I decided then that I would make it in order to convince everybody, and I will.

In the meantime I have not forgotten my art. In the rush of many duties this lifework of mine is only neglected, but not forgotten. I look forward with new spirit and feeling to getting to work again in my studio.

In conclusion let me appeal to every man, woman and child to take advantage of the wonderful bounty that nature offers. Let them study the great that value, he could work more economically and produce better work.

I never realized until after I came from the woods how very little the average person seems to know about the forest and the things therein. The constant deluge of most ordinary questions which I have every day makes me marvel at the ignorance that exists concerning this vital subject. I have come to believe that the average man and woman has no conception of the forest life.

Men of the woods who know do not think my accomplishment so wonderful. Yet there are hundreds who are constantly telling me what a wonderful thing it was. Together with these there are those who not understanding wood life disbelieve my stories outright.

For the benefit of this last class I propose in the near future to make a second experiment in the forest like the first. Just as I did on Aug. 4, 1913, I will enter the forest naked and without food or implements of any kind to aid me and will rehearse my experiment all over again so far as living on my own resources is concerned.

However, on this second trip I will add something. In order to convince the people who cannot understand at present I will allow a dozen representative men to accompany me and watch me live the primitive life. These men may enjoy the comforts of camp life and observe me constantly.

Of course if I am to get a deer with my hands as I did the last time these men must let me go and get it undisturbed. A dozen men couldn't lie around watching me do this. But with such freedom of hunting as would be absolutely necessary the observers would be able to keep strict tabs upon me every day of the experiment.

Such a trip will be conclusive proof. I will guarantee on this second experiment to get myself in a condition to meet any change of climate in spring, summer, fall and winter.

If the Maine game and fish commissioners refuse me a permit a second time to kill what game I need for the experiment I will demonstrate the life in Canada, where I shall have no trouble in this respect.

I made up my mind to try this second experiment even before I reached Boston on my way from the wilderness after my first one. It was at a banquet at Portland that a man came up and, shaking my hand, said:

"Mr. Knowles, I want to congratulate you on the remarkable thing you have done." It was the same thing over again, and I couldn't help inwardly smiling at the word "remarkable."

"I want you to know," the man continued, "that I believe in you, but there are some at this banquet tonight who are skeptical."

"Well, that is their privilege," I answered.

This phase of it hadn't come to my mind before, and the idea of the second trip immediately occurred to me.

I decided then that I would make it in order to convince everybody, and I will.

In the meantime I have not forgotten my art. In the rush of many duties this lifework of mine is only neglected, but not forgotten. I look forward with new spirit and feeling to getting to work again in my studio.

In conclusion let me appeal to every man, woman and child to take advantage of the wonderful bounty that nature offers. Let them study the great est "textbook" of all—the open book" of nature. Let them find health and character and happiness among the trees of the forest and in the great outdoors. Let them understand the wild creatures who have souls like themselves. Let them abandon all things artificial and really live. Let them answer the call of the natural mother—she has blessings untold to bestow. In a word, let humanity be born again.

Wordsworth has said truly: Nature never did betray the heart that loved her.

THE FRUIT GROWER KNOWS A THING OR TWO

YOU know, all tobacco users know what is the matter with ordinary chewing tobacco!

Everywhere men are saying to their friends that "Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew.

Pure, mellow, full bodied tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

If your dealer does not sell it, send us 10c. in stamps for a pouch of "Right-Cut" Chewing Tobacco.

Advertising Pays

"For Sale: A baby-buggy that is a bargain in every sense of the word. Has not seen hard usage. Will sacrifice if sold this week."

Before the office opened up the next morning the phone rang loud and long. "Take out the ad, the buggy is sold." Advertising does pay.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 6, 1874. An unusual amount of business was disposed of yesterday by the common council. All members were present with the exception of Aldermen Starck and Rogers. The minutes were not read. Numerous accounts were read and referred to the finance committee, the only noticeable item being $428 for legal assistance. The artesian well meeting in the common council room this evening should be thronged. This morning the work increased. This morning the bore had gone six hundred feet striking soapstone at 570 feet. The fullest particulars will be afforded at the meeting tonight.

The chief engineer found Milwaukee street bridge in danger of burning in consequence of a cigar stump which had been heedlessly thrown away. Arrangements have been made under which Prof. Parker will continue to direct our school operations, until the time arrives for him to commence his normal school duties. The baseball club has gone to Beloit and we wish the Mutuals all kinds of good luck in their game this afternoon. The military company will probably meet tomorrow evening, but there is at present no official notification of the fact. Hay is bringing from $8 to $10 per load according to the quality. No great quantity is in the market as yet. The whittling process is so well arrived on at the corn exchange that two chairs are gradually disappearing.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE APOLLO
J. Aldrich Libbey and Katharine Traver, two singers and comedians of wide repute, will present at the Apollo for the balance of the week a musical comedy sketch entitled, "A Dispute in Morocco." This couple has appeared in opera, in musical comedy and in vaudeville in the leading theatres of this country, Canada and Australia. New York and other papers combine in saying that this sketch gives Mr. Libbey and Miss Traver an opportunity of displaying their splendid operatic voices.

Announcement is made today by the Apollo of the big Vitaphone Broadway star feature photo play, "A Million Bids" which comes to Janesville for one day, next Wednesday.

This motion play was shown for 264 consecutive times in New York at one show a seat and made a tremendous hit while there, as well as in Chicago and Milwaukee.

On Sunday the first episode of "The Perils of Pauline" will be shown with Earl White and a strong cast of Pathe players. On Monday Mary Pickford will be seen in the modern fairy play with which she made such a success during her short time on the stage, "A Good Little Devil."

First Riddle.
The first riddle on record is that propounded by Samson to the thirty companions who came to the marriage feast of his wife—afterward burned to death with her father by the Philistines—and for the answer to which he promised to give them 30 shekels and 30 changes of garments. "Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness." For the outcome, see the book of Judges, 14:12-20.

Be the Right Oak.
"Think of me as the sturdy oak and you as the clinging vine, my sweet." "Yes. But be a live oak, Chremosa dear!"—Puck.

KILL RATS TO STOP THE BUBONIC PLAGUE

How United States Public Health Service Exterminates 50,000 Rodents in New Orleans.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Four deaths from bubonic plague in New Orleans last month turned the United States Public Health Service into a squad of rat killers. In less than two weeks 50,000 of the rodents at the source of a pestilence which in May, June and July 1911 caused the death of 86,000 persons in India. To show how efficient the public health army is, let me cite these facts:

On Monday during the routine of his office work Surgeon General Blue, director of the Public Health Service, received a night letter from the Mayor of New Orleans advising him that one man had died and another was afflicted with a disease that resembled bubonic plague. Dr. Blue was asked to come and investigate. By noon Blue was in conference with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, in whose department the health service is.

McAdoo ordered Dr. Blue and Assistant Surgeon General Creel to New Orleans. Within twenty-four hours they were en route. And three days the diagnosis of the New Orleans physicians was confirmed, an outgoing quarantine was established and expert rat killers ordered from San Francisco. Fifty thousand rats were killed within the first two weeks.

In the meantime wild rumors had reached Washington of sixteen deaths the first day in New Orleans and the Ministers and ambassadors of the South American countries wired their governments immediately recommending a cessation of commercial intercourse. The Health Service through Secretary McAdoo protested within twenty-four hours. Secretary of State Bryan to these countries. They were invited to send physicians to New Orleans to see that any such prohibition against shipping was foolish and unnecessary. Most of these countries then withdrew the barriers pending a more thorough investigation.

By the time warning was sent to every state on our coast and the bordering on the Mississippi. Health officers and the public were told to KILL RATS.

"This plague is primarily a disease of rodents," said Assistant Surgeon General Tucker, who was left in charge of the situation by Dr. Blue who went on an inspection tour of Gulf ports, "and secondarily and accidentally a disease of man. Man's safety from the disease lies in the exclusion of the rodents and in their parasites. This is the basis of all preventive and eradication work. If man can live in rodent-free surroundings he need have no fear of plague, because if there are rodents there can be no rodent parasites and for all practical purposes the flea may be considered as the common vector of the disease from rodent to man. The eradication of bubonic plague therefore means the eradication of rodents."

Almost everyone asks how they catch these creatures. Dr. Tucker's first answer is: "Not with rats." That theory was exploded long ago. A man raised a whole farm of cats whetted their appetites on raw meat, almost starved them just before turning them loose at a dock, then put some wharf rats in the enclosure and the cats all ran away. Why I have seen rats as big as rat-terriers and no cat will ever attack them. The best method, Dr. Tucker said, is by traps and burning sulphur. Experienced rat killers know just how to rotate traps and food so as to deceive rats. They go into all ships that are to be fumigated and sulphur pots all around, light the sulphur and close up the ship. Twenty-four hours later they go in and sweep out the rats for they all come out of the holes and cluster around the sulphur pot because the air immediately around the pot is always fresher until the last suffocating minutes. Then the rats are too overcome to get away.

BOMB FOR AN AIRSHIP

Suspended by Cable From One Airship It Is Exploded Near Another.

When the airship was first developed it was instantly recognized as a very effective means of destroying the enemy by dropping bombs in the midst of the latter's camp. Soon there was brought into requisition a gun which can be trained at any angle, and which will bring down the aircraft in short order if the latter should get within the range of the weapon. Now there has been just patented a means of arming one airship so as to bring about the destruction of another. The armed airship carries a bomb of special design on the end of a long cable, and in making an attack the airship is driven high in the air and above the other. The upper one is maneuvered to get the cable across its victim, and as the distance between the two becomes greater the bomb is finally in contact with the doomed airship when the explosion takes place. The picture of destruction which takes place can hardly be described, but is left for the imagination.

DESERT AND ROSE

By MAY C. RINGWALT.

From the open flap of the small tent scudded a lizard and sociably sprawled on a warm, red patch of sunshine splashing the Indian blanket spread at his feet, but Norman, bending over a letter pad tilted on his hunched knees, was too absorbed in the business of his scratching fountain pen to even casually notice his neighborly little visitor.

Finally, the man looked up from the finished sheet, pushed back his sombrero, wiped the sweat from the band of fair, white skin that ribbed his tanned brow, and with a sigh so deep drawn that it started a quiver of green movement on the rug, read over the letter he had written and now held in his thin brown hand.

It began with brusque tenderness: "Dear—At last the verdict's in, and instead of the expected 'hanged by the neck until he shall die,' a sentence of imprisonment for life."

"For your sake, I carried the case to the highest court of appeal. Went to Los Angeles and had the great Willard look me over. Both lungs have healed. Provided I stay put—go on in the same sun-baked rut of the past two years, there is no reason why I should not rival Methusalem in hoariness of age. My life the forfeit if I break parole and attempt an escape."

"And so, sweetheart, we come to the parting of the ways, my way and yours. I ought to have given you up long ago. But at first I thought it would be for such a little while that it would not matter, and afterward I hoped against hope that I should be able to go back to civilization and you."

"Now I release you, little girl—insist that our engagement end."

"Good-by, dear, and God bless you. You need not answer this. I shall understand when your letters stop coming. No, do not offer to go on writing as friend to friend. I could not quite bear that now."

NORMAN.

Silently, without a quiver of the grim-lips, he folded the letter, slipped it into a stamped, addressed envelope, slowly sealed it, then, his head bowed in his hands, he began to sob—with a man's anguish and the abandon of a little child.

The days dragged by, heavy-weighted with a sense of prison chains. Norman had boasted that he still had his work. But he could not write. He could not think. He could only feverishly wait for the letter that he had asked her not to write.

Yet not until two weeks had passed, and he knew at last that she had taken him at his word, did he realize to the full measure of bitter disappointment how much he had counted upon one more letter from her.

The east-bound overland was due in an hour, and he was going on it. He stood on the station platform waiting—trembling from excitement and haste of packing, every now and again casting a stealthy glance over his shoulder as though afraid of being watched.

With the caution of the real prisoner breaking jail, he had only bought a ticket to a near-by point. The kind-hearted middlemoresomeness of his neighbors, the tyranny of the doctor under whose thumb he had been so many months, were capable of going any lengths of interference when it came to a matter of what they considered his own good.

A whistle sounded. A flare of light swept the gathering night from the track. He snatched up his suit-cases—impatiently dropped them again. The locomotive's headlight flashed from the wrong direction. He had forgotten that the west-bound train passed ten minutes before his own.

The puffing engine paused for breath the usual short, hurried instant of an express. A black parallelogram of a trunk was tossed from the baggage car. The black figure of a woman passenger got off the Pullman.

The express gave a creak forward—rattled, rumbled, and roared into the awaiting blackness.

The new arrival stood hesitating, a nervous, lost-child air about the slight, shadowy figure. Norman took a quick step to her assistance. The blurred light of the station lamp softly enwrapped her.

He started back, a cold fear clutching his heart. The brooding of the last hideous days had been too great a strain—his mind had suddenly given way!

But the woman did not start back—she ran toward him with a glad cry of: "Norman!"

It was not the hallucination of a nervous breakdown. It was Nan. Nan—her dear flesh and blood self. Nan in Eden. Nan on the platform beside him. Nan in his arms.

"And you are really glad that I'm here?" she tremulously laughed, when at last he opened his arms wide enough for her to look up into his radiant face.

"After I started I was so frightened! But I had to come." She hid her scarlet-swept face in the old resding place. "It was the only way I could make you understand, you dear, foolish stupid, you."

And then he knew that a woman never really loves until she makes a sacrifice for the man.

Parental Effort.

"What are you working so hard for?" "I want to provide for my boy's future," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "I want to lay by enough wealth so that I can leave Josh this farm for a golf course."
